BEGINS

LAW FIRM'S CHARITY INITIATIVE

They're selling out of sandwich bags in High Wycombe as staff from Reynolds Parry Jones plan to take part in a challenge to raise £20,000 for Alzheimer's Society.

Everyone at the firm will be encouraged to bring a packed lunch and donate their lunch cash to charity on Wednesday 29 April.

"It's an easy way to raise a significant amount of money and might see everyone bringing in a healthier lunch option too," said senior partner Richard Hughes

The fundraising is part of the Twenty:Twenty challenge launched during the 20th Anniversary celebrations for LawNet, the legal network of independent firms to which Reynolds Parry Jones belongs, whose member firms provide legal services to the Alzheimer's Society.
